Nevada prisons change inmate phone services

BY BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

Families of state prisoners will get a break on charges for phone calls from locked-up relatives, under a new contract announced by the Nevada Department of Corrections. But the prices are still high compared with phone call costs on the outside.

The $7.2 million, 3-year contract with EMBARQ, a Kansas-based communication services company, covers the entire Nevada prison system, now housing about 13,000 inmates. The company also provides such services to prisons and jails in many other states.

With the EMBARQ system, prison officials say inmates' families will pay $1.45 for a local call lasting 16 minutes, down from $1.89. The $1.45 is a surcharge, and there's no per-minute rate.

The price jumps for a nonlocal call within the state to $2.73 for 16 minutes. With a surcharge added in, that's 17 cents a minute. The $2.73 compares with the old charge of $4.48 for the same call.
